

WHITE SIGNS "YELLOW DOG" LABOR BILL

Today

Fairly Peaceful May 1st
Children and Mothers
The Party is On The Highest Building

—BY ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MAY 1, which is labor's day in Europe, devoted to the wrongs of the proletariat, passed off quite peacefully here. VERY peacefully at home.

There were slight unpleasant demonstrations here and there abroad, one policeman shot in Berlin, he killed and seventeen hurt in Barcelona, most agitated part of Spain.

The red flag was waving. Russia shut down work completely to celebrate in a great May day celebration the apparent success of the five-year plan.

Here it was business as usual. Business as is usual in a depression, and not too exciting.

YESTERDAY, as Mrs. Aida De

Acosta Breckenridge reminds you, was also children's day, devoted to their health.

Sixteen million children under six years of age in the United States represent the United States to them will happen to the United States. What is good for them is good for the United States.

Twenty-seven million one hundred thousand children are in our elementary and secondary schools and kindergartens. If the government could take as much and as successful an interest in young children as it takes in young calves, pigs and colts, through the agricultural department, millions of children that now die would live.

AND AS FOR the mothers of American children, after we have finished taking care of our factories, and other "sources of production," some attention might be paid to mothers. The White House conference on child health and protection showed the death rate among mothers in this country to be higher than in 25 of the largest nations in the world. It is higher than in any other civilized country.

Fifteen thousand mothers died in childbirth in 1928, and 50,000 in 1929. These figures are not lives lost less than a month on the average. The majority of these deaths could be prevented, and preventing them would be worth while.

THE PARTY IS ON, politically speaking, Governor Roosevelt, who expects to be nominated by the Democrats in 1932, and very probably will be nominated, attacks

President Hoover in the good old way.

He says President Hoover's administration is "timorous," says our national administration is geared to the slow pace of 50 years ago, and the people look to the Democratic party to lead the way to basic principles.

Anybody might be a little "timorous" carrying responsibility for the country's welfare in the slump following a war, with its killing of millions and its spending of billions.

In one respect we may congratulate ourselves, as Mr. Frederick H.

Eaker remarked yesterday. We have come through two years of hard times, with conditions such as had not been known since 1873.

And it has not been necessary, any where, to call out army, militia or police.

YESTERDAY'S New York event was the formal opening of the Empire State building.

President Hoover pressed a button in Washington that turned on the light of the world's tallest structure at Thirty-fourth street and Fifth avenue.

Governor Roosevelt of New York

CAPONE SOUGHT IN DEATH OF GANG LEADER

Charred Body of "Mike De Pike" Heitler Found in Burned Ice House.

POLICE LAUNCH RAIDS

Four of Al's Henchmen Arrested in Start of Reputed Cleanup.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, May 2.—Alphonse Capone, gang chief, was sought today for questioning by police in connection with their inquiry into the death of a man whose charred body they believed to be that of "Mike De Pike" Heitler, pioneer racketeer. The body was found last Thursday in the smoldering ruins of an ice house near Barrington, Ill.

Acting on orders issued by Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, the officers raided the Lexington hotel, reputed to be frequently used as Capone headquarters. Although they failed to find the gang chief, four of his henchmen were arrested. They were Louis Russo, brother of "Machine Gun Jack" McGurn; Phil Andrea, Fred Rossi and Tony Ca-pezio.

Other Places Raided
Police also arrested "Dago" Lawrence Mangano, reputed operator of a Capone vice, gambling and liquor syndicate. Roche said Heitler had operated extensively as a rival of the Mangano organization, other raids were made on resorts reputed to be run in the area in which Heitler operated by the police, who declined to reveal what, if anything, they had learned.

"We will raid everywhere until we drive out every hoodlum from Chicago," Roche said. "This is just part of our campaign to clean up the city. The hoodlum is getting out. That means Capone, too, and we are now looking for him."

"Positive identification" of the "torch victim" was sought. Roche said he was convinced the man was Heitler. A partly burned automobile which Heitler had borrowed from one of two women, each of whom claimed to be his wife, was found near Itasca, 15 miles from the fire scene.

Woman Discovers Fire
Mrs. Hattie Gannush, who discovered the fire told police she saw three men she believed to be gang sters in the vicinity of the ice house on the afternoon of the fire.
Heitler was to have appeared in court yesterday on a charge of perjury, but his attorney asked a continuation, saying that his client had been missing since last Wednesday.

FEDERAL FORCES STRIKE

23 Alleged Followers of Capone Named in Indictments.
By International News Service
CHICAGO, May 2.—The United States government struck another blow against the Capone booze syndicate and gangland in general here today with the indictment of 23 alleged followers of Al Capone, charging them with violation of the prohibition law.

Principal figures named in the indictments are Bert Delaney, said to be in charge of Capone beer manufacturing; Steve Svoboda, brewmaster; Martin Accardo, brother of Tony Accardo, Capone gangster, and John Mattels.
The indictments were on recent raids, two of which were on Capone breweries which beer valued at $75,000 was seized. They are regarded as another step in the purpose of United States District Attorney George E. O. Johnson to smash the Capone trust.

Just Things

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

What Are You?

DID you ever watch a flock of customers eating waffles? I mean customers who really make eating waffles a real, earnest piece of business. After observing several I am of the opinion that some of these folks who claim to know whether or not you should take a sea voyage just by looking at the palms of your hands, or whether you should eat carrots to bring out your latent talent, could find out a lot by watching folks attack their waffles. Now honestly, do you begin at the middle and work out to the edges, or do you trim off the edges and save the middle where all the lasses huddle, or do you systematically work on each section individually until it is plumb gone?

Transportation

IF you came from the sticks, rural district, or in plain words, if you came from a town where the train only whistles now, deep down in your heart, you're still for it and you are somewhat concerned as to how things are going, no matter where you are. If you came from such a town, you will do some tall thinking when you learn that in some places the railroads have tacked a passenger coach to the local and folks who would a traveling go, a la steam cars, must do with it, at least until they get to a larger town where they can catch a regular train. To be sure the word local, so far as some folks can remember, hasn't much of a connection with the railroad, but there were days when it was not only a convenience but something of a lark to ride on the "local." To be sure it sometimes took you two hours to get four or five miles but look at all the free riding you got switching up and down before you pulled out and into the station, and there were even times when the conductor forgot to collect your dime.

Spring

THERE'S an old wheeze about the spring and the young man's fancy turning to love and we wonder if any one in the calfhood stage this spring is writing love notes that can only be read by the aid of a looking glass or bewildering their juniors by dashing off a lot of "hog-Latin."

Mad Pursuit

BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

CHAPTER 12
Appraising Eyes

NORA sat in the old city station, her bags huddled about her. From time to time she glanced at the clock and then with apprehension at the station doors. Many times in the last hour she turned with a trembling heart as some stranger passed. She had thought of running away to meet Nicholas. But that was her father would have done. She would have to wait. Would he come to meet her? She wondered miserably if she would see him. But she must wait. There was only one thing she wanted now, the old peace. She did not want to come alive again; for she had been too much. But a peace came to her. Per-sonally she would. The doctor would be wireless for her, to her own people.

She was sitting up, she saw Jon-athon Thayer. She would have anywhere thought it years since she had seen him. The pale, clear-cut face, the insolent, and that air of superiority.

She looked at him, glancing at him about, studying the man about. He would smile at her. He would remember her. For the first time through the feeling seemed to her eyes as he came for-ward, stood before her, but in his hand.

Jonathon Thayer. Are

"Yes," she answered almost inaudibly.

He had not recognized her. At first she could not believe it. She understood his expression. It was one of horrified dismay. His eyes looked at her in silent criticism. She still wore the blue suit and scarlet blouse.

"I hope you haven't been waiting long," Jon was saying. "I was out when the wire came saying on what train you would arrive."

He was studying her with quick glances. What a slim long-legged little creature she was with that white face held under a fierce control. She could have borne his pity, but his frank dismay was unbearable. She disliked him violently.

"Of course you must have something to eat first," he said.

He acted as though nothing had happened, as he asked for her trunk and found that she had no trunk. There was only one thing she would not part with. That was Nicholas' painting of the peasant woman; she clung to it, in spite of his offer to have it put with her bags.

But she saw that although his expression was cold, his eyelids were swollen from weeping. She related a little toward him. How could he be expected to remember her after five years?

"Could you walk a block or two? There's quite a small place, but perhaps it would be more quiet there."

He was taking her there because he was ashamed of her. She hoped she would never have to see him again after this meeting. What if it meant that everything was swept away, her dream of security in the old house in the country? Nothing mattered but that she should leave this heartless man who did not

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. I got up bright and early. It was bright and the day was early, and when I had let Jubilee down by his rope I threw the rope down to have it ready for Annabelle Lee if I needed it, and then I put on my short britches and went down and the bunch was all there by the time I got out to the barn with my milk pail, and whilst I was milking Youniss and Feeble and Maggie came, and they had a basket with them and wanted us to all go out and look for wildflowers, but the bunch all had their fish-poles with them and we said we were going fishing, so they stuck around till I got my work done and my stable cleaned and my face fed, and then they started off up the street kinda slow and looking back, and I got the can of worms down off the scattling in the barn, and when I got a whiff of them and gave them a look they were all dead and smelt like they had been dead long-er than they had. I guess they were too crowded and needed some dirt in between them. So then we hollered at the girls and threw our fishpools on top of the barn and skunk out and caught up with them, and then we were glad the worms had went down on us. For Youniss' mother had put a lot of weenies and bread and jelly and bread and cheese and stuff in the basket for us to eat, so I carried the basket and we went out to Rocky River which is a long ways, and we made a fire and cut some sticks and sharpened them and toasted weenies and had a good time.

We waded in the river where it isn't very deep and the bottom is all one big flat rock, and we used the basket for a scoop and tried to catch some minnows, and the girls stood on the bank and weren't having a good time very, till Feeble took off her shoes and stockings and came wading out to where we were and it was the Lost Bag of Tripe's turn with the basket, and Feeble said, "Here let me show you how," and she took the basket and turned it upside down over her head and gave him a push, and the rock was slippery and he made a splash like a whale, and got scared because he couldn't get loose from the basket for a minute and Feeble was out on the bank pulling on her shoes and stockings. So then we went with them into the woods and there were a lot of wildflowers, and I found a green snake, but it was only a little one and not much good, and we were all looking at it, and all at once it disappeared.

We took the basket of flowers home to give my mother some and my aunt was lifting them out of the basket to put them in vases and she picked up the snake, which

Madge's Father Decides to Settle the Baby-Naming Controversy

I SHALL not soon forget the ludicrous look upon Hank's face as he heard Katie's voice announcing dinner. The first strains from the record which he had bidden his brother to put on the phonograph had just sounded, and he had moved toward Marjorie saying "Will you dance this?" in what was patently his very best dancing-class manner. With a perfectly grave face Bill stopped the phonograph at Katie's announcement, and for the life of me I could not tell whether his action was prompted by courtesy to the domestic regime, or a wish to get back at Hank for his ruse to secure the first dance with Marjorie.

"Pronto" to Dinner

"Aw, Aunt Madge!" Hank protested wildly. "Can't we have just this one before dinner?"

"Sorry, Hank!" Dicky went behind me saved me the trouble of answering. "But this here dinner," he has been delayed quite long enough as it is. Remember you kids were munching peanuts, candy, and hot dogs all the way down while I was driving, and if I have to wait any longer I certainly shall have to begin on Rodrick or Junior."

The two little boys squeaked appreciatively as Dicky turned a speculative eye upon them, and Harry Underwood close behind him seared the cue.

"I shall take Rodrick myself," he said gravely, "unless we get into the dining-room pronto."

"We would all better, pronto!" Lillian said in a low tone. "I just saw Mother Graham come into the dining room through the other door. Besides, you may not know it, but Katie has stinks boiling."

"Forward March! Double Quick!" Dicky said, and we all filed into the dining-room, not waiting for my father, according to his frequently expressed wish. The farmhouse is his, but never when either Dicky or Harry is at home does he take the head of the table. He much prefers the freedom of slipping into his seat at any time he chooses, or of not coming down at all if he wishes his dinner served in his room.

He came into the room only a minute or two behind us, and as he sat down, I saw him give my mother-in-law a face, a quick, searching glance. I knew that he was endeavoring to conjugate her mood and temper, and was glad indeed that I had left her in rare good humor just before dinner. As if by tacit agreement, both the Underwoods and Dicky and I seconded my father's silent efforts to make her the center of the table talk, succeeding so well that by the time we left the table, she was in so mellow a mood that she did not object when Bill and Hank, to whom I privately had given a hint, asked her if she would mind their turning on the phonograph and dancing. Indeed she was smilingly gracious, stipulating only that the strains should not be too loud, and seating herself in an easy chair in an extreme corner of the room, watched her grandsons with apparent equanimity as they roiled up the rugs deposited there under the piano and set the phonograph in motion.

This time it was Hank who put on the record. Bill patently divided between diffidence and determination, with the second quality winning, had managed to range himself next to Marjorie as we all came out of the dining room, and without laying himself open to the accusation of being an "egg" and a "bum sport" words so much used by the younger generation, Hank could not oust him. So Bill danced first with Marjorie while Hank watched his sister through the fox tail the record of which he had put on the phonograph.

Under cover of the music my father spoke to me keeping his back carefully turned toward my mother-in-law's corner.

"Do you think it is all right to speak to her pretty soon?" he asked anxiously.

"Yes," I stole a glance past him and saw that for all Mother Graham's surface amiability, the noise of the phonograph was vaguely disturbing her. "Why not suggest a game of cribbage in the library?"

"I was thinking of that bribe," he said with a smile, which I threw back at him, for Mother Graham's devotion to cribbage is well known to all her intimates.

An "Artistic" Worker

He made his way to her side and after a little colloquy she rose, took my father's arm and they moved down the room to the hall and across the hall to the library. They were a stately, handsome old couple, and I resolutely stifled the thought so often with me lately, that the time was coming when I should no longer see them in their accustomed places.

I knew that my father in Dicky's parlance, was "too artistic a worker" to broach the subject of the baby's name until he had permitted my mother-in-law to win a game or two of cribbage, so I dismissed them from my mind, and with Lillian amused myself in watching the awkward but determined rivalry for

has struck a popular new note in motor-car styling

Many factors have contributed to the remarkably wide-spread popularity of the new Chevrolet Six. Among these are smooth performance, low price, matchless economy, exceptional riding ease and driving comfort. But no feature has been more strikingly evident in the enthusiastic public reception of the car than its smart new style.

Fisher Body craftsmen, with their background of fine-car designing, have made this new Chevrolet an exceptionally attractive automobile. Study it from any angle and you find it extremely pleasing. Look at it from the front and you are impressed by the modish ensemble of deep radiator, large headlights and arched tie bar—all gleaming in rich chromium plate. Viewed from the side, the long hood, low-slung body lines, sweeping fenders and massive wire wheels strikingly suggest the car's fleetness and power. And the appeal of Chevrolet's beauty is made more pronounced by the fact that all models are available in a variety of colors.

Interiors, too, are unusual in every way. The upholstery is carefully tailored. Seats are roomy, deeply cushioned and invitingly soft. And the interiors are tastefully appointed.

In fact, the new Chevrolet Six is such a thoroughly fine-looking automobile that it has become a very popular choice with every type of buyer. You find it not only the smart family car, but the smart personal car as well—a worthy companion to the expensive automobiles of the two- and three-car household.

This emblem—made by Fisher—is a symbol of superior body craftsmanship—exclusive with Chevrolet in the low-price field.

Six Meet Records Shattered in First Day of Ohio Relays

UNIVERSITY STARS TO OCCUPY SPOTLIGHT IN FINAL DAY'S EVENTS

100-Yard Dash, 220-Yard Hurdle Race Features of Meet Today.

By The Associated Press. COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—High school and college track and field stars will give way to their university brothers today on the eighth annual Ohio relays program at Ohio State university but not without leaving the more famous stars something to shoot at.

Six records, two in the Ohio college division and four in the high school class, were shattered yesterday during the running of the first day's program.

One of the college marks that tumbled was the century dash, Dee Hutson, of Denison, breaking the tape in 9.7, beating the Ohio relay mark by two tenths of a second just two-tenths slower than the world record.

Hutson will come back today to match strides with Eddie Toland, Michigan's great star in the university century and with weather conditions right, there is a possibility that other marks may tumble.

With the Toland-Hutson match the Keller-Sentman 120-yard hurdle battle will vie for attention. Both of these boys have come close to the world mark in earlier meets this year.

So strong is the possibility that records will be shattered in these two events, relay officials are having United States weather bureau officials install anemometers on the stadium field so that if a new record is set there will be no argument concerning the atmospheric conditions.

Miami university of Oxford broke its own record in the sprint medley relay, covering the distance in 3:38.8 as compared with 1:36.2 set last year.

Columbus Central carried off the lion's share of the high school events, winning two events and breaking two marks, the Class A mile relay in 3:27.1 and the half-mile mark, covering this distance in 1:31.5. The half-mile record was made in a qualifying heat, the finals being on today's program.

Tatum Grasse, who made southern football history as a coach in prep school circles, has joined the coaching staff at the Citadel, Charleston, S. C.

USE THE DRIVES!

Appeal Issued to Users of McKinley Park Ball Diamond.

Dr. F. R. Mann, chairman of the city park commission, through Elmer Shaw, secretary of the recreation ball commission, has requested an appeal to individuals using the McKinley park ball diamond to be more careful in the driving of automobiles through the park. Dr. Mann states that numerous individuals are driving their cars without regard for driveways, thereby marring the beauty of the park by running the grass. Dr. Mann requests that all automobiles be kept on the driveways and that cars do not be driven into the area immediately surrounding the diamond. Refusal to heed this request may necessitate steps being taken to curb the driving of cars within the park boundaries.

CALVARY IN CLOSE GAME

Calvary Evangelical eked out a 5-4 victory yesterday over the Forest Lawn Presbyterian recreation ball team. Calvary was originally scheduled to play the Calvary Christian No. 2 team. Calvary will play games with unnamed opponents Tuesday and Friday of next week.

EARNSHAW IN FORM AS ATHLETICS BEAT NEW YORK YANKS 4-0

Cleveland Set Down by Detroit 4-2; Boston Wallops Washington 10-4.

BY ORLO ROBERTSON. Associated Press Sports Writer. For some reason or another, George Earnshaw, whose famed right arm came to the rescue of Connie Mack's Athletics last fall, has not been performing so perfectly this spring or at least it hadn't until yesterday.

Twice Connie Mack had given his right-handed ace the starting assignment and twice Earnshaw failed. On two other occasions he went in as a relief hurler, but yesterday, Earnshaw was the Earnshaw of 1930, who won 22 games for the world-champions, as he pitched the New York Yankees back with three hits, and the Athletics won, 4 to 0.

Jumping into battle after a five-day layoff, due to rain and cold weather, the lowly Boston Red Sox pounded three Washington pitchers all over the lot to defeat the Senators 10 to 4. Jack Russell held Walter Johnson's Nationals to ten scattered hits.

Joe Judge, veteran first baseman, was forced to withdraw from the game in the sixth and was taken to a hospital where he underwent an operation for appendicitis. Joey Kuhel will substitute for Judge.

Vic Frasier had his right arm and batting eye working as he pitched and batted the White Sox to an 8 to 2 victory over the St. Louis Browns. The Texas rookie held the Browns to nine well spaced hits and in addition doubled with bases loaded in the sixth—a seven-run inning for the Sox.

Charlie Sullivan stepped out of his usual role as a relief hurler, starting and finishing a game as the Detroit Tigers turned the Cleveland Indians back 4 to 2.

The battle for first place in the National league was settled, at least temporarily, when the St. Louis Cardinals defeated the Chicago Cubs 6 to 2. The victory gave the Cards undisputed possession of the top of the percentage column.

To most teams, a two-game winning streak is not much but to the Brooklyn Dodgers, it means that they probably have hit their stride after a dismal start. The score was 8 to 4.

Hughie Critz, Giants second baseman, swung a powerful bat in New York's 5 to 0 victory over the Boston Braves. He clubbed out four singles and a home run for a perfect day at bat.

A base on balls proved to be the downfall of the Cincinnati Reds as they lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates 5 to 4, in 11 innings. With the bases loaded Carroll lost control, passed Sankey and Paul Waner scored.

Red Bird Club Is Surprise of American Association Race to Date.

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 2.—For a team that was figured to go nowhere in particular in the American Association pennant race this season, the Columbus Red Birds have at least gotten nicely started. The birds were in third place today.

They lost a great finish yesterday to take the second game of the series from Kansas City, 9 to 8. The Blues finished the seventh with a 7 to 1 lead, but Columbus picked up three in the eighth with Kansas City getting one in its half of the round. In the ninth four hits and a spell of wildness on the part of Kansas City hurlers, gave Columbus five runs and the ball game.

Louisville retained its first place margin by making it three straight victories over Minneapolis, 9 to 5. The Colonials got 12 hits off Parks, McCullough and Morgan, and bunched nine of them in the first three innings of all their runs.

St. Paul, the second place team also scored its third straight of the series, defeating Indianapolis, 13 to 9.

Milwaukee defeated Toledo, 4 to 3, for its first home victory of the season.

Joe Judge Stricken by Attack of Appendicitis

By United Press. BOSTON, May 2.—Joe Judge, veteran first baseman of the Washington Senators, who was operated on for acute appendicitis at Peter Bent Brigham hospital here last night, fell into a natural sleep after coming out of the anaesthetic and rested well, hospital authorities reported today.

The Senators have recalled First Baseman Joe Kuhel from the Baltimore Orioles to replace Judge during his convalescence.

Commission Gives Title Status to Sharkey Bout

By The Associated Press. NEW YORK, May 2.—Jack Sharkey asked the commission. The commissioners agreed. And now the battle between Sharkey and Primo Carnera, to be held at Ebbets field, June 10, weather and courts permitting, is officially designated as being for the heavy-weight championship of the world.

When the New York state athletic commission sanctioned the scrap, the fistie fathers said they had not labeled it a title bout because no one had asked them to. Yesterday Sharkey appeared at their meeting and presented his argument and the boxing solons agreed to the stamp.

JOCKEY HURT IN SPILL

By International News Service. COLUMBUS, O., May 2.—Jockey Robert Cheatham was suffering from a fractured rib and possible other internal injuries in Mt. Carmel hospital here today following a spill at the Beulah park race meet when four horses and their riders piled up in the fourth race.

BABE READY TO PLAY

By International News Service. NEW YORK, May 2.—Babe Ruth may take his place in the outfield for the Yankees tomorrow afternoon at the stadium, when the Boston Red Sox come to town. ## Threats Fly as Time Nears for Wrestling Bout

"We'll see," Clyde Robinson, that slugging wrestler, said when told of Nick Boznie's "bridgework" alibi in regard to an alleged runout on a wrestling match here several weeks ago.

Since the two boys have been matched for a main go appearance at the Steam Shovel gym Monday night fans have settled back to await the big moment. "We'll see" seems to be their favorite expression and promoters are expecting them to do their seeing in droves.

Robinson is confident that he can outslug and outwrestle the notorious roughhouse Boznie. In fact he still insists that Nick is plenty afraid of him and is only appearing here to maintain his good standing in the wrestling fraternity.

With both men rated as past masters of the rough game, fans are certain to be in for a large evening Nick has been stung deeply by the taunts flung his way by Robinson. He will attempt to prove to the world at large that he is not in the least afraid of Robinson.

Joe Montana and Roy Duncan have been matched for the 30-minute semi-final match. These boys too are expected to furnish plenty of action. Two preliminary matches will complete the bill. The advance ticket sale is under way at Markert & Lewis.

MORRAL, MARION TO PLAY HERE SUNDAY

Teams Are Members of Newly-Formed Rural Community Diamond League.

Morral and Marion, two members of the newly formed rural community baseball league will clash Sunday afternoon at Lincoln park in the first game of the local diamond season. The game, a non-league affair, was originally scheduled for last Sunday but cold weather forced its postponement.

Complete details of the recently organized circuit have not been received yet. There are six teams in the league. They are Hilliards of Columbus, Delaware, Marion, Morral, Sunbury, and Prospect. Joe Conroy is captain of the Marion team.

Morral and Marion will both use the Lincoln park diamond as their home field so Marion is assured a game at home every Sunday.

BISHOPS WIN EASILY

The Epworth Bishops recreation ball team handed the Lutherans an 11 to 1 beating yesterday afternoon on the Lincoln park diamond. The Bishops will play the Kappas Monday at 6 p. m. at Lincoln park.

"TIME AT BAT" NOT OVERLY IMPORTANT ON SOME OCCASIONS

Rick Ferrell Relates Effort To Spoil Brother's No-Hit Game.

By The Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 2.—"Just another time at bat," was Rick Ferrell's effort at the plate in the eighth inning of a memorable game at Cleveland the other day.

Yet, though "ABs" are the bane of a ball player's existence, Rick is pleased that this particular effort just a time at bat, with no credit for a base-hit, despite the fact he arrived safe at first.

Rick's old brother, Wes, stellar hurler of the Cleveland Indians, was pitching that day, and the team for which Rick is catcher, the St. Louis Browns, had failed to scratch anything resembling a base-hit off his speedy delivery in seven and two-thirds innings.

Didn't Want Hit

With two out in the eighth, Wes on the road to baseball's brightest hurling achievement—a no-hit, no-run game—and the Indians nine runs to the good, brother Rick strode to the plate.

"I didn't want a base-hit," says Rick, recounting the incident, "but I had to get up there and try my best. Even if it hadn't been my brother, I'd rather not get a base-hit at that stage of the game."

"Anyway, I was up there, doing my best to knock my kid brother off his perch in the hall of fame. Wes didn't say nothing but I knew he was going to bear down."

"First he brushed over a curve ball for a strike. The next pitch, another curve, was outside for ball one. Then he turned on the steam. Then I got a hold of a shoulder-high fast one and lit out for first base."

"It was a pretty well hit ball, but Hunsfield came up with it and gunned it over to first. His peg was a little wide and pulled Fonseca off the bag, and I was safe."

Almost a Hit

"Wes walked over a few steps from the mound and says, 'You would take that'n, wouldn't you, Rick?' He was smiling, but I bet he felt kinda choky about it, at that, because they first posted it as a hit. Then they decided it was a bum throw instead."

"I love my bingles just as much as the next ball player," Rick concluded, "but there's one time just another time at bat didn't make me mad."

Kid brother Wesley, as everyone knows, went on to attain his no-hit goal.

Four of the seven Ferrell brothers of Guilford Center, N. C., are in professional baseball. Marvin pitches for Milwaukee in the American association and George is an outfielder with Buffalo of the International league.

Republican Women Will Attend Dedication Rites

State Council To Make Pilgrimage Here from Annual Meeting in Columbus June 15 and 16; 25 from Marion Expected To Attend.

A delegation of approximately 25 Marion county Republican women are expected to attend the fourth annual meeting of the Ohio Council of Republican Women in Columbus June 15 and 16.

The business session of the convention will open Monday morning, June 15, with the school of politics scheduled for that night. Weatherholt of Gallipolis, recording secretary of the council. This rally will be open to all Republican men and women. County chairwomen are delegates to the annual meeting and are entitled to a vote, providing they are members of the Ohio council.

Double Honor for Family

Special to The Star

GRANVILLE, O., May 2.—Unusual in the annals of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, was the recent election to membership in the Denison university chapter of both Mrs. Burton Case, an alumna of the class of 1875, and her grandson, Robert Edwards, now a junior at the university. They are pictured above.

Mrs. Case, who attended Denison university before the Phi Beta Kappa chapter was established here, received while in school marks which would entitle her to the honor. Since graduation, she, as a prominent resident of Granville, has been associated with many of the university activities. Her grandson has twice won his letter as a varsity football man and is prominent on the campus in other non-curriculum activities as well as starring in the class room.

Will Follows President to Virgin Islands; Urges Natives To Adopt Chicago Style of Getting Rich

BY WILL ROGERS

Well, all I know is just what I read in the paper, and I have been reading the paper for some time. I have found a paper that goes for nothing. It is the "St. Thomas Mail" of the town of St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, U. S. A.

Now you might have read in the local press various references to Mr. Hoover's statement about the condition of the islands after he had visited them a few weeks ago. Now in all fairness to our President, I don't think he meant it exactly like it was reported to have been said. He did say that they were in a pretty bad condition financially, and he might have in order to stir up a little interest in them and perhaps be able to get them a Federal contribution of some kind, have thought he was doing them a favor by bringing to the public eye the fact that they were in a bad way. But at any rate it seems to me that the opposite of fact, and if you ever saw any one in arms in these Virgin Islands, here is how I happened to know and get in on it. I was a young fellow, and I had been some several hundred miles from Trinidad, Port of Spain, (which is owned by the British) and is a very beautiful island just off the north east edge of Venezuela. We were in one of those great big Grant Condors, carries about 20 people. It runs from Port Antonio, Port Rico, well we were headed for Port Rico for that night. We came down in the bay of St. Thomas for gas and mail. It's a beautiful little harbor, and a lovely picturesque little town, some mighty hospitable folks there.

Made Good Rum. It was a Navy base, but they are moving it away. In the days before America had gone "backwater" it made Rum, and good Rum. It was a legitimate business, carried on by experts. Then during a time when our ambitions were bigger than our judgment, why we thought we should spread out and try and be "A" Nation.

Now if there is one thing that we do worse than any other Nation, it's try and manage somebody else's affairs. We are very original, nobody else can see things our way, (of course they are wrong) but they just won't be broad-minded and let us show em how they should live. During this expansion we thought we ought to have the Virgin Islands, Denmark. (I believe it was) They owned em, and we just bought em, give em $25,000,000.

But let's get on with the story. Mr. Hoover had just finished a siege with the Senate and he needed a rest so he went to Port Rico, and also to the Virgin Islands, and then home and made his observations. As we land on this lovely afternoon why I am tickled to death to be able to fly by and see our absent countrymen, and get their reaction on our President's visit.

Well did you ever see a community mad? No you haven't, you only think you have. You haven't seen a Community mad, I guess you see the Virgin Islands. I guess you can get madder at a President than anybody else, because he is bigger and so much more prominent. So as I told you at first, all I know is just what I read in the papers.

Pleads for Loyalty

Well they handed me their little paper, and let us read as it is here before me as I pen this: "To the Virgin Islands. Regardless of how much our feelings have been hurt by the remarks of the President of the U. S. who alludes to us as a 'Poorhouse' and expresses regret that the U. S. ever bought us, we must not forget our dignity, and so in the future place ourselves beyond the reach of future insults. We must be loyal to our local Government and to the U. S." Signed by the Editor.

The editorial goes on: "When Denmark (I thought it was the Swedes but I guess it was) the Danes that sold it to us) When Denmark transferred the islands to the great U. S. they certainly did not constitute a 'Poorhouse.' She made them so by her stupid laws, unsuited to our well being. Any American alluding to us as a 'Poorhouse' is devoid of decency, even though he be President of these United States. Our welcome to the President was both loyal and dignified. The St. Thomians were not awed by his presence, for they have become accustomed to meet BIGGER MEN THAN PRESIDENT HOOVER. THEY HAVE CHATTED AND DINED WITH THE CREAM OF EUROPEAN ROYALTY. NOT FOR A FEW HOURS BUT FOR DAYS, and these men were appreciative of our hospitality and did not repay it with abuse, but they landed at King's Wharf, (that's the place I went ashore too) they landed there nicely dressed, and NOT IN A GARB AS THOUGH PREPARED FOR A BUCK DANCE IN THE SLUMS. AS MR. HOOVER DID.

"Virgin Islander have always been strongly in sympathy with America. During the Spanish-American war, when we belonged to Denmark, we always welcomed American battleships into our harbor. We did not walk into America's arms for charity. America has no concept of the rights of other people. This narrowness, (although the richest Nation on earth) makes her the most hated Nation, even when she is doing a real good. But may the day never dawn when the inhabitants of these islands look on her in the same manner as do the people of Mexico and Latin America."

Are Playing Golf

Now folks, there is harsh words. Talk about the Democrats knocking the President! Well they took me ashore, and they said they wanted my visit to offset his, so I told em to go ahead and make their rum, that there was no reason they should take Prohibition seriously just because they belonged to the U. S. So with a bunch of them we all went and had a nip of Run Punch, and I don't mind telling you the islands looked great. I don't have many. Couldn't have been so far behind the times they had two of my pictures there (talkies) and one of them I hadn't even seen at home yet myself. I was awful sorry that they had misinterpreted this Prohibition thing, and quit selling their rum, and when I explained to em the interpretation that the mainland of the U. S. had put on the Amendment, why they were tickled to death, and started right in to get ready to manufacture on a big scale. I gave them Capone's address, as I wanted to see em get started.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses. Guests were Mrs. Jack Adkins, Mrs. Walter Evans and Miss Dorothy Hall. The next meeting will be held the third Thursday in May.

With the best folks over home, where they could get the most for their product. Of course they will have to start from the bottom in regard to competition, for the U. S. had 12 years of business start on them. But they will be all right now, and the next time a President visits them, their product will be making them rich just like Chicago, or any of their competing centers. I am going to have those Virginians so rich they will be able to have 50 thousand dollar funerals, and President won't mean anything to em. (Copyright, 1931, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

In announcing arrangements yesterday for mailing of souvenir envelopes from Marion on the day of the Harding Memorial dedication June 16, one detail relating to the expense charge was accidentally omitted. ## WANT 600 IN SUNDAY SCHOOL

Trinity Baptist Church To Climax Attendance Contest with Drive.

Climaxing an eight weeks attendance contest, "Over 600 Day" will be held at Trinity Baptist church Sunday at the Sunday school hour. Leaders and members of the classes are making a special effort to reach the 600 mark Sunday. Assisted by H. H. LeMaster, superintendent and the teachers and workers in the young people's and adult's departments.

The Sunday school has been divided into two groups and the losing side will furnish an entertainment in the near future for the entire Sunday school.

Harry Woodall is leader of the young people's group and Lloyd Ledley is leading the adult classes. A system has been devised for determining the per cent of attendance in each group. T. R. Evans, director of music, has arranged a special program of music for Sunday morning. Souvenirs will be distributed at the door to each person upon his arrival.

At the morning church hour communion service will be observed. Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor, will preach on the subject "The Spring Within." Certificates of membership will be distributed to those recently taken into the church and unable to be present at the last communion. The choir will sing "Thou Wilt Keep Him in Perfect Peace." Miss Edith Brown will sing a solo, "Tread Softly," by Doane. Sunday night Rev. Wood will preach on the subject, "Life's Law of Rhythm." The choir will sing "Saviour, When Night Involves the Skies" by Shelley, and John Duffey will sing a solo, "Gloria," by Buzza-Pecola.

Victory Over Fear

A SERMONETTE BY LAWRENCE A. WOOD, Pastor, Trinity Baptist Church

Text: Ps. 56:3. "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee." The uncertainties of life make stout hearts tremble. No prudence can predict when the unexpected will overtake us. The words, "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years, take thy ease, eat, drink and be merry," are but hollow mockery when one stops to consider how uncertain the years will be.

The disaster of the unexpected is always confronting us and its impending danger stalks along the path of life like an horrid ghost. The advice is good that we ought to be expecting the unexpected, but who can brace himself to resist its impact?

It is to this bewildering and terrifying state of mind that Jesus enters with his benign words, "My peace I give unto you" and those other words so precious to all believers in Jesus, "Let not your hearts be troubled." If you are compelled to walk in a cramped way, if you are utterly discouraged, if you are a prisoner to fate, if you are daily tortured by fear of the unexpected, it is to you that our gracious Lord comes saying, "My grace is sufficient for thee, my strength is made perfect in weakness."

There is comfort in the record of the appearance of our resurrected Lord, "When the doors were shut for fear of the Jews and stood in the midst, and said, 'Peace be unto you.'" Human limitations do not limit Him. He is the master of fear, and brings the one and only remedy for trouble, the peace of God. He calls it, "My peace," and adds, "Not as the world gives, give I unto you." He gives abounding, overflowing peace, "He maketh my cup to run over." It is by reason of this that the devout thoughtful Christian can say with confidence, "What time I am afraid, I will trust in thee."

Two Marion Churches To Observe Music Week

TRUITT BROWN

EPWORTH ARRANGES FOR MOTHER'S DAY

Event Moved Up One Week Because of Centennial Program.

Mother's day will be celebrated Sunday at Epworth M. E. church Sunday, May 10, has been set aside as the day on which mothers are to be given special distinction and honor, but because Epworth's centennial opens on that date, services dedicated to mothers will be held Sunday morning and night.
Dr. C. E. Turley has selected two sermon topics appropriate to the occasion. In the morning he will speak on "Are the Women Worth It?" and at night on "Great Mothers of History."
The Epworth weekly bulletin carries a picture of a young mother and her baby on its cover, and beneath it a verse by Cora M. V. Preble which reads as follows: "God gave us friends; and then, not done, With blessings from above, He gave to us His crowning one, A mother's tender love."

PLAN MOTHER'S DAY PROGRAM AT CHURCH
Trinity Baptist Church To Observe Event with Special Program.

In preparation for the Mother's day services Sunday, May 10, members of Trinity Baptist church will be given an opportunity Sunday morning to name their mothers. Mothers are asked to bring a list of their mothers' names to the church Sunday morning. As many as possible will be used at the night service on Mother's day, which will be a service of music. Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor, will preach on the subject, "Hymns My Mother Liked to Sing." A special effort will be made to secure a large attendance of mothers at the morning service at which time flowers will be given to the oldest mother present and a gift will be given the mother present with the youngest baby.

The church calendar for the week is as follows:

"HUNGER MARCHERS" ON WAY TO CAPITAL

Cleveland, Youngstown Delegations in Second Day of Trip to Columbus.

By The Associated Press
CLEVELAND, O., May 2—Two bands of Ohio's "hunger marchers" trundled on today in the second lap of their journey to Columbus, where marchers from over the state are scheduled to gather on the capital steps May 10 to demand state unemployment insurance.

Started off by yesterday's May day demonstrations, the first two "divisions" left Cleveland and Youngstown, and were to proceed today from Bedford and Salem, respectively.

Tomorrow, similar groups are to leave Bridgeport and St. Clairsville, and in the next two days the Toledo and Cincinnati delegations are to march.

The Cleveland division, totalling 38, plodded in the town hall, Sheriff Alvin Henry of Summit county went to look them over to see what kind of a reception to give them at their scheduled arrival in Akron today. There they were to pick up recruits.

The Youngstown group of 25 arrived in Salem in a truck, but it was explained they would start hiking today. Both groups sang the "Internationale" and held demonstrations enroute.

May day passed without serious trouble in Ohio, although demonstrations and parades took place in several cities.

Four tear bombs were thrown just as a demonstration ended in Akron, but police could not find the throwers. About 150 persons held an orderly parade and meeting there.

By The Associated Press
NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 2—Resignation of James Cannon Jr., from his bishopric in the Methodist Episcopal church, south, is asked in a petition to the semi-annual meeting of the college of bishops here.

The petition, from a group of Methodist laymen, was made public in Richmond, Va., and Bishop John M. Moore, secretary of the college, said it was the same as others received by him along with various communications opposing Cannon's elevation to the presidency of the college under a rule of rotation. At the same time, Bishop Moore said letters also had been received supporting Cannon.

In the petition, the Virginia prelate, who was vindicated by the last quarterly conference of the church and later by a group of elders of charges based on stock market transactions and other allegations never made public, is described as "doing the church untold harm."

"Reports that gravely reflect on the moral character of Bishop Cannon have been published throughout the country," the petition recited. Continued from Page One continued. The function of the church today in its community according to Professor Heininger, "is not to put labor on the back, but to put the capitalist on the back, but to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ."

The conference opened with a supper last night at the Y. M. C. A. at which E. N. Hale, secretary of the Y. spoke to the young people on vocational guidance, giving them the idea of cultivating hobbies and of studying their own capacities before deciding upon a life's profession.

Rev. R. A. Sain, presiding elder of the Columbus district, also spoke last night on the personal consecration of the young people to their church.

This morning the conference was divided into discussion groups continuing along the theme of finding life's work and of youth's finding his place in the church.

A short recreation period this morning was spent in a hike to the Harding tomb. One of the problems which came up for discussion in the closing sessions this afternoon was "Christian recreation for young people." The discussion concerned the question of how much time young people should spend in recreation, both in the church and at home.

Rev. LeRoy H. Deininger of Mansfield, formerly of Marion, presided at the sessions. He served as chairman of arrangements for the meeting.

"YELLOW DOG" LABOR BILL GETS WHITE O K

Governor Approves Measure Voids Anti-Union Contracts in Ohio.

Continued from an increase of pay to $5 per day for petit jurors besides making slight changes in method of selecting such jurors.

The Steubenville municipal court bill was disapproved because it provides that juries shall be drawn from the citizens of the Steubenville, thus excluding the right of citizens outside the city to sit on juries. "This arrangement," the governor said, is contrary to the doctrine that a man shall be tried by, or have his case submitted to a jury of his peers drawn from the county at large and is utterly at variance with the long cherished doctrine relating to the administration of justice.

Court Increase Disapproved
A bill creating an additional common pleas judge for Lucas county was vetoed on the ground that the state would have to pay $3,000 of the salary when rigid economy is necessary and that there are sufficient judges in the smaller counties to be assigned to help out in Lucas county.

POSSIBLE OPPONENT FOR HOOVER SEEN

Republicans, Independents Said To Be Considering Fight at Primaries.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, May 2—Republican independents may oppose President Hoover in the party primaries next spring.

This group in the senate from the northwest agricultural states has disagreed with Hoover policies throughout his administration.

Senators Borah of Idaho, Norris of Nebraska, and La Follette of Wisconsin, independents, are mentioned in political discussions here as possible candidates, together with Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania.

Senator Johnson, of California, who was not aligned with the independents, but who has found himself in frequent opposition to the President, also is counted among the potential candidates.

Republican regulars who in 1928 went into the field against Herbert Hoover in pre-convention campaigns are watching interestedly, or preparing to go actively to the fore for the Presidency.

It is a paradoxical situation. Leaders in the fight for Hoover in 1928 may be his opponents in 1932. The old guard allies who fought him so hard in 1928, may be his main support next year.

Senator Brookhart, Republican of Iowa, a member of the independent group, opened the discussion today of a Progressive battle.

"Progressive sentiment ought to be tested out," he said, "by such leaders as Senators Johnson, Borah, Norris and La Follette and by Governor Pinchot. There is no doubt in my mind of their popularity in money states."

However, the prospective candidates put forward by Senator Brookhart decline to concede the likelihood of their becoming candidates at least at this time—and the whole proposition is still in the speculation stage.

Dancing and cards were enjoyed. Plans were made for another social meeting in the near future. It was decided to organize a baseball team and hold a practice game with the C. & O. team Monday night. A class of candidates will be initiated at a meeting May 14.

Yeggs Steal $500 from Ohio Theater

By Frank Moore Leased Wire.
SALEM, O., May 2—Box office receipts of the Grand and the State theaters for two days, estimated at approximately $600, were stolen from the safe of the State theater by thieves who looted the office of the State street playhouse early this morning.

The thieves broke the lock of the door, following which they hammered off the combination of the safe. Office desks were ransacked and a bank check for $950 taken.

The robbery was discovered early this morning.

From the pages of the ancient sagas, we learn how the Norse chieftain who had bade his last farewell to this life was always placed in his Viking ship, wrapped in a pall of flames, and sent out to sea as befitted the roving life of a man of valor.

Thus the little tribute was what he himself would have most desired.

What better guiding principle could there be than that of doing everything just as the departed one would have wished! It should be the uppermost thought in the minds of all who tender their services.

Governments Shouldn't Blunder.

It is dangerous for a government to make mistakes.

A national organization composed of leaders of thought has listed disrespect for law as this nation's most serious problem. President Hoover, realizing the importance of the problem, appointed an able commission to study it. The time for superficial analysis is long past.

Most every one can remember when the adjective "federal" applied to a law, an enforcement officer or an administrative action meant more than it does today. There lies at least a part of the solution.

People of a few years ago respected the federal government more than they do today because it was able to command their respect with a fine record of performance. To make an invidious comparison, a "federal man" of yesterday automatically commanded respect, where a "federal man" of today frequently has to bid for respect among people whose ears have been burdened with hints and evidences of misfeasance in his group.

This is dangerous, obviously. A government may maintain order by one of two means: by enlisting the support of the people or by armed force. If the people have faith in a government's unlimited power, they will obey it out of respect; if they suspect, or can enunciate, its weaknesses, they must either be forced to obey or allowed to go their way without proper restraint. One need not be a trained sociologist to trace America's growing disrespect for federal control. It can be found in the records of congress and the reputations of congressmen. It can be found in wasteful expenditures of public money for ill-considered federal projects. It can be found in dozens of instances where the federal government has blundered so obviously that the people actually have been impelled to understand it was not the inviolate power they once respected.

Senator Borah on Regulation.

The Christian Science Monitor puts a pertinent question at Senator Borah which should prove somewhat embarrassing to the distinguished gentleman from Idaho. Editorially commenting, on the senator's insistence that, if restriction of petroleum production and importation is to be permitted in the United States, the public must be protected against a rise in the cost of gasoline by government regulation of prices, the Monitor asks if he favors the adoption of the same plan in regard to agricultural products.

It seemingly is the senator's position that whenever there is regulation or restriction of the supply of any commodity there must be corresponding government regulation to keep the price of that commodity down, and he apparently makes no distinction between an industry suffering from overproduction and one whose product is being exploited by monopoly.

"Now one of the very first industries to come in for price fixing in the consumer's interest under this theory," says the Monitor, "would be agriculture. The United States government has been a leading party to the effort to regulate the supply of wheat, cotton and other farm products, first by purchase to remove surpluses from the market, then by encouragement of cooperative organizations, and now by appeals to the farmers to reduce acreage of staple crops."

"All this admittedly is intended to maintain, and if possible improve, the prices of farm products—as undoubtedly they should be improved. But this would probably affect food prices to some extent. Therefore, according to Mr. Borah's contention in the case of oil, the government should establish a species of public utility regulation over the prices of wheat, four and bread, and presumably should announce that it will use the 200,000,000 bushels of wheat which the Grain Stabilization corporation owns as a club over the market to keep the price from being raised." And it goes on to ask: "Will the senator from Idaho round out his advocacy of farm relief by urging this policy?"

It may be put down as a lead pipe cinch that the senator will not. Idaho's foremost industry is agriculture. Its agricultural products, without considering the products of its stock-raising and dairying industries, exceed the combined value of its lumber and mineral products by many millions of dollars. Under these circumstances, will the Hon. William Insist that agriculture be made a sort of public utility and put under government supervision as he suggests should be done with the hard-pressed oil industry? He will not. He is not built that way. The senator's idea is to place certain industries of other states under government regulation in the interests of the people of his own state. In a word, his conception of ideal regulation is that which regulates the other fellow, but in no way applies to the fellow back home.

Both Akron in this state and Galesburg over in Illinois plan the substitution of bus lines for street railway service. And we recall that it was but a few years ago that the street railway people were indignant over the suggestion that the bus would drive the street car out of business! So rapidly are conditions changing that today there can be little certainty regarding what tomorrow has in store for us.

Working on the Road.

An important part of the federal program to speed public works was an $80,000,000 advance to the states for road construction, assigned by congress last december. Previously, on April 4, 1930, $5,000,000 had been made available; on September 1, last year, the enlarged road-building appropriation of $125,000,000, annually for three years, was apportioned among the states, instead of on the customary date of January 1. The $5,000,000 advance was part of the $125,000,000, made available to decrease unemployment at a critical time.

Such vast expenditures have aroused many critics, particularly those who point out that by subsidizing road construction, the national government literally is undermining the health of the railroads that are so essential to its well-being. There is, furthermore, criticism of the assignment of federal aid, which is on a basis of one-third according to area, one-third according to population, and one-third according to mileage of rural post and star route roads. It is charged, and with convincing arguments in support, that the distribution is inequitable.

For the present, however, it seems likely that principle will be forced to play second fiddle to expediency. The fact that more than 10,000 miles of federal aid highways were under construction the first of April and that 5,796 miles more had been approved for construction—an increase in total of forty-five per cent over 1930—is an all-important one for employment. Working on the road will be a considerable factor in economic recovery during the summer months.

Baron Man von Oppenheim, counselor at the German embassy in Washington, upon his arrival on the Europa Thursday, announced that he had dug up in the ancient city of Tell Halaf statues and pottery dating back 3,000 years, the oldest known to man, using an Arabian curse on an Arab chief to force him to reveal the location of the city. We have heard of other curses which brought an array of statues and pottery, but the latter were not necessarily ancient.

The Illinois house of representatives has passed a bill appropriating $107,800,000 for the construction, reconstruction and maintenance of highways looking to the completion of its 9,800-mile highway system. Wonder which Illinois will adopt to extricate itself from the coming financial crisis, an increased license tax, a higher tax on gas, a tax on malt syrup or all three?

Back in London, Gilbert K. Chesterton expresses his horror over the appearance of American villages, bearing little resemblance to the villages of his England. We can sympathize with Mr. Chesterton regarding the lack of charm in our villages. To one accustomed to the utterly magnificent face and the lack of conventionalism of a British one it is easy to understand that an American village hotel would be a sight to behold.

Editorial Opinion.

A BAROMETER ASKEW.

If general business conditions are steadily improving—and there is mounting evidence that they are—then why does not the stock market more accurately reflect the recovery? Why do stocks rise briefly, only to plunge to new lows under heavy liquidation?

One answer repeatedly advanced by Wall Street commentators is that owners of investment securities, discouraged by a long period of unsatisfactory earnings, are getting out whenever the time seems propitious for unloading.

But an explanation offered by the New York Journal of Commerce seems more plausible. The heavy liquidation on each temporary rise comes from banks that are still loaded down with stocks acquired through brokers' loans at the time of the original debacle. To improve their own positions, the banks are under a moral obligation to reduce these common stock holdings whenever there is opportunity to do so without loss. To do otherwise would be poor banking. And it is this necessity for converting stock assets into other assets, the Journal of Commerce believes, that is acting as an automatic brake on the market.

If this view is the correct one, then present security values are not accurate yardstick with which to measure present business prospects, and the stock market, for the time being, has lost its traditional reliability as a true barometer of trade.—Minneapolis Journal.

OUR HEROES.

A magazine article that fell under our eye the other day makes what seems to be a very complete reply to our many foreign critics who sneer at the way we do look with some envy upon the man who has at his command a million or ten million dollars. Most of us who have to cut our financial corners closely would not mind being able to take life a little more easy, but that is far from regarding the wealthy man as our hero. Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. Ford probably have more wealth under their immediate command than any other Americans; everybody understands that, but how do people regard these men? With curiosity, mainly. They have accumulated their fortunes in very different ways, but neither has by the successful effort established himself in the estimation of the American public as a superlatively ideal personage.

Our national heroes come from quite a different source: Pershing, Lindbergh, Byrd, Edison and the group of young men who excel in athletic contests—these are the only living persons to whom the charge that we are but a nation of money-chasers, with no appreciation for things outside of gain, falls flat when the facts as to who are our heroes are considered.—Columbus Dispatch.

PARCEL POST LOSING MONEY.

In sixty cities of the country the post office department will conduct a "drive" to increase the business of the parcel post.

Different branches of the postal service utilize so many of its facilities in common that it is difficult to fix the exact cost of any one. About the only way of doing it accurately would be to discontinue a branch and compare costs before discontinuance with those afterward. That the parcel post is losing money seems to be established and by such methods as may be used in determining it the loss is placed at as much as $20,000,000 a year. The entire deficit is incurred in Zones 1, 2 and 3, and would approximate $7,000,000 but for the more distant zones, in which a profit of $2,000,000 is reported.

If the present large business in the first three zones is now unprofitable, may it not be still more unprofitable if volume of business is increased? If more tonnage is the general aim, how will customers be taught to discriminate and use the particular zones in which receipts are likely to exceed costs? At any rate, congress has made it mandatory on the department to cut the deficit down and postal officials have been taking counsel on how the orders are to be carried out.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

X-Ray and Thymus Gland.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

One of the most puzzling and bewildering diseases of infancy is a condition known as "status lymphaticus."

Scientific understanding of this disease is recent. It resembles other vague diseases in that it is due to a disturbance of a gland. The thymus gland is the particular seat of the disorder found in status lymphaticus. This gland is located just below the thyroid gland—"Adam's apple"—in the middle of the neck and extends to the chest.

The thymus is a temporary gland and normally attains its greatest size at the time of puberty. At this age of life it ceases to grow, shrinks and gradually disappears.

At birth the average weight of this gland is less than two ounces. From birth until about five years it weighs about half as much. In status lymphaticus the gland is often from five to ten times larger than normal. In marked cases of this disease the gland may weigh as much as half a pound.

The condition is most frequently encountered between the ages of six to twelve months. It may be observed in children of any age.

The importance of recognizing this condition is great. Many of the sudden deaths in childhood, if carefully analyzed, may be attributed to this disease.

Occasionally a healthy child may suddenly be seized with convulsions and have difficulty in breathing. It is important that a child who has such attacks be given the best of care. If neglected, such a child may succumb at a very early age. This is particularly true if he should be subjected to an accident; a minor operation, or during the progress of some common childhood disease.

In many cases convulsions are absent and the child presents but one symptom—difficulty in breathing. The parents may believe the child has swallowed some foreign substance, or may be suffering from the croup.

For many years this disease bewildered the medical profession. With the advent of the X-ray machine, pictures may now be taken which show the actual enlargement of the gland.

Recently X-ray treatments have been given as a means of relief. This method of treatment has been extremely beneficial and has saved many infants.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A. M. B. Q.—Is it possible to rebuild the glandular system and how can this be done?

A.—This condition can be overcome in some instances by supplying the deficient gland. The treatment should be prescribed and taken under proper medical supervision and advice.

J. W. Q.—I am troubled with lumbago and have been advised by a friend to eliminate tomatoes and prunes; what would you advise? Heat usually gives relief, but I would like a definite cure.

A.—Prunes come under the heading of the acid fruits. Most fruits, however, become alkaline in their final reaction in the body. Each system is different and should be studied and treated accordingly. Try to find the underlying cause of the trouble first of all.

K. G. Q.—I am troubled with nervous indigestion. When I get these attacks I feel as if I would faint unless something is done quickly to help me. I am only seventeen years old. What would you advise?

A.—Try to get at the source of the nervous condition first of all. Watch your diet, avoiding too many sweets and too much starchy food, and be sure to keep the bowels active.

K. L. M. Q.—What do you advise for seed wants on the hands?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

BETTY. Q.—What causes one to spit blood in the morning?

A.—It would be wise to have the lungs examined.

A. B. Q.—Would a tapeworm be apt to cause a choked-up feeling accompanied by shortness of breath and nervousness, before meals? If not, what would cause the trouble and how can it be overcome?

A.—Not necessarily; these symptoms would seem to suggest hyperacidity. Watch your diet and be sure that the bowels are functioning properly.

MISS N. A. C. Q.—What causes indigestion? A.—This is usually due to faulty diet and lack of proper exercise.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Sun's Power.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

As we walk out in the sunshine and feel the genial glow of the sun, we little think of the enormous force of solar radiation even at work throughout the universe. Light itself exerts a pressure which can be measured. Theoretically, as Einstein says, it would be possible to knock a man over by turning a searchlight on him—only the searchlight would have to be excessively intense and the man would probably be vaporized first.

One of the fundamental relations advanced by Einstein in his special theory of "Relativity" is that between mass and energy. The enormous amount of potential energy in matter is evidenced by this formula, according to which the effective mass may be multiplied by the square of the velocity of light. And this velocity of light, according to Professor Albert Michelson's latest determination, is 186,213 miles per second.

Consider now the state of affairs inside the sun. Electrons and protons fall into one another and destroy one another, with a high energy of fall. The velocity of an ordinary molecule of air inside of a room at normal temperature is 1,500 feet a second. Whereas, inside the sun, a molecule of matter darts about at the rate of more than 500,000 feet per second. As Darwin points out in his stimulating work, "The New World of Physical Discovery," we measure sunlight not only in degrees of temperature, but also in terms of periods of weight. Sixty tons of the sun's mass are dissipated each year for the benefit of the earth and its inhabitants alone. The only thing which stands between the human being upon this earth and death by freezing is this fortunate gift of sixty tons of sunlight annually.

Let us go a little more closely into this phenomenon. Every year, on the basis of the new theory of the annihilation of matter, the sun loses one hundred and 25,000,000,000 tons. The resulting energy radiates out from the sun into space in all directions and the earth catches only one two-billionths of it, or, as we have seen, sixty tons. On this basis the sun has a lease on life of at least 15,000,000,000 years still. So, at the moment, there is no cause for grave alarm.

To keep us going, we only have for the entire earth less than four ounces per minute. Translate this, however, into terms of energy, according to Einstein's formula, and it figures up to the astounding total of two hundred and thirty-three quadrillion foot pounds of energy per minute. In other words, to ten million Niagara's! This is forty-five times as much energy as is used in the whole world for all mechanical power purposes whatsoever.—Copyright, 1931, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

When Cox and Vallandigham Clashed

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

"I hope the predictions of my colleague will never be fulfilled. I have some faith in the sagacity of our secretary of state—Seward; too much faith in the honor of the people of the country to believe that they will ever permit the government in a case of clear right to dishonor them. The honor of a nation is its credit; its credit is its commerce; its commerce is its cash; and cash brings with it the confidence and refinement of civilization. When you touch their cash, you have a powerful argument with any nation."

These words were uttered by Samuel S. Cox in congress where he was representing the Capital City district of Ohio, and the "colleague" to whom he was replying was Clement L. Vallandigham.

The Mason and Slidell incident was under discussion. Captain Wilks, a United States naval officer had halted a British vessel on the high seas and taken from her Mason and Slidell, two southern men of prominence who were about visit England as representatives of the confederate government, to try to prevail upon the British to espouse the southern cause by recognizing their government.

Vallandigham had predicted that within thirty days the United States would be glad to surrender these men to England in face of representations of a menacing character. He was right in a sense; Mason and Slidell were released, though not exactly because the United States was afraid to hold them, nor in the face of threats, but they were released, and continued their voyage to England, where their efforts for recognition of the confederacy came to naught.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, May 2.—This is how it came about: At dinner my wife suddenly exclaimed: "Let's go picnicking tomorrow." Impulsively, I clapped hands and cried: "Let's." And with my fair for getting off perfectly killing things added: "I used to pick a mean nick."

In days along the Ohio river I was quite a boy on outings—skinning the cat, imitating the Robinson circus clowns' falsetto and slipping a jelly tart under Mr. C. Fred Henking as he sat down in white duck pants. It's a wonder I didn't wind up in Valdeville.

We were awake half the night planning the picnic and up at daylight quite jittery over the joint. In the ecstasy of delirium I phoned Ruba Goldberg to join us. And that swish was a bucket of cold water: "What are you doing—teething?" he sneered. "Picnics are for children."

Anyway we took off by motor just as New York's army of slaves were trudging to back-breaking toil. My wife and I and the two dogs tongues panting and rosy from excitement. Any one would know at a glance it was their first picnic.

After a glide—I always feel like a greased pig going through a Child's restaurant there—in to the Hudson tunnel and spinning through a village or so, we burst into the splendor of the open countryside. Wild geraniums spangled green thickets and luminous plumed birds wheeled skyward, full throated with song. It was grand.

Under field a farm hand rested a moment on his rake and watched us bowl by. Whiffs of smoke curled lazily out of hillside chimneys. A rabbit, peering timidly from a clump of weeds at our on-rushing globin-like monster, leaped crazily across our path in convulsive jerks.

On a commanding rise I looked back at the laze outline of Manhattan—a smudge of smoke, steel and crushed dreams. Now cruel, how remote! And here we are Gypsying in the braising cool of a marvelous morning—a morning pungent with perfume of verdant hills. Will some one accompany me on a clarinet?

The winy tang to the air quickly radiated a hunger and by 11 o'clock I began to think of those deviled eggs impaled on toothpicks, the imported sardines from that New British shop on upper Madison avenue, the jar of apple jelly from sister Katie, curls from port-soaked Sutton cheese, Richmond Temple sent from London, and the thermos of chilled fresh milk. "How would you like to eat?" I suggested. "Meaning of course, we eat," replied my wife, who had apparently not sopped up much of the cheerful sunshine. Then: "Where did you put the lunch?"

In a flash I saw a perfectly wonderful picnic taking a hurried bow. I forgot the food. "Where did I put it?" I inquired with feigned astonishment. "You heard me," with a deadly calm. I remembered vaguely promising to store it up front with the chauffeur. But not having picnicked for more than twenty years, a guy can not remember everything. Anyway, I haven't been so well lately. I'm taking pills right now. Three miles in a thick silence.

Meekly from me: "We might stop at one of these clean little roadside stands and pick up something." Then with a quick brightness: "Or perhaps pluck a few gooseberries." After an interval: "You may if you like." Three more miles in thicker silence. And what got me was the way Fred, the chauffeur, sat there like a frozen-faced statue. With me out on the end of a limb that way he might have done something to ease the strain. Even a few ear wiggles would have helped. But he only looked ahead, stiff as a ramrod, as much as to say: "It's your picnic. And like it."

All the while I was getting hotter and hungrier. And while I'm hot and hungry I break out in a fiery rash of little red dots. My wife by contrast in such emergencies grows pale and glacial. In a spell of self pity I finally blubbered: "About all I get out of this happy outing, in both quotes and Italics, is to be treated like a stepchild." Glancing at my face she affirmed indifferently: "That—stiffing a yawn—and an elegant helping of prickly heat."

We circled back to New York without stepping from the car. My wife and her mother are having a grand spread with the lunch in the other room. I'm in a fullblown pout and won't eat. But, O boy, what I could do to a setting of those deviled eggs!—Copyright, 1931, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Automatic Humidifier
CONCERNING YOUR HEALTH.

THE LITERARY DIGEST in its issue of May 24th, 1930, says:

"...In winter the cold air has very little moisture in it. At times the air in our houses is drier than the air on the desert. Such dry air parches the skin, and dries the throat, making it uncomfortable and subject to the attacks of bacteria. Not only does excessively dry air make one irritable, but it is debilitating as well.

E. G. SIEFERT IS MANAGER

Local Agency Head Affiliated with Firm Since 1922;
Covers Seven Counties.

The Marion branch office of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co. was established in 1914. At the time of organization, with W. T. Phillips as manager, the office embodied the territory of Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Union and Wyandot counties.

Prior to the establishment of a branch office in this district the company was represented through the general insurance agency of Hoch Bros. from 1912 to 1914. Through this connection General Agent Fred W. Hoch holds the distinction of serving his Ohio State Life clients over a period of 19 years.

Add Two Counties
Shortly after the organization was effected, Gen. Agt. R. E. Pretyman and John H. Guthery affiliated with the company, and have continued their life insurance work without a change during this sixteen year period. At the time of entering his general insurance work, J. W. Lewellyn made his life insurance connection Ohio State Life.

In 1922 there was added to the district the counties of Crawford and Seneca. At this time the management was placed in the hands of L. A. High. Mr. High continued as branch manager until 1928 when he was appointed manager of the Columbus branch office. The business of the Marion district office was then conducted through its present manager, E. G. Siefert, who served the company as branch office cashier from 1922 to 1925.

In 1925 Paul H. Schwemley was added to the office personnel of this agency as cashier.

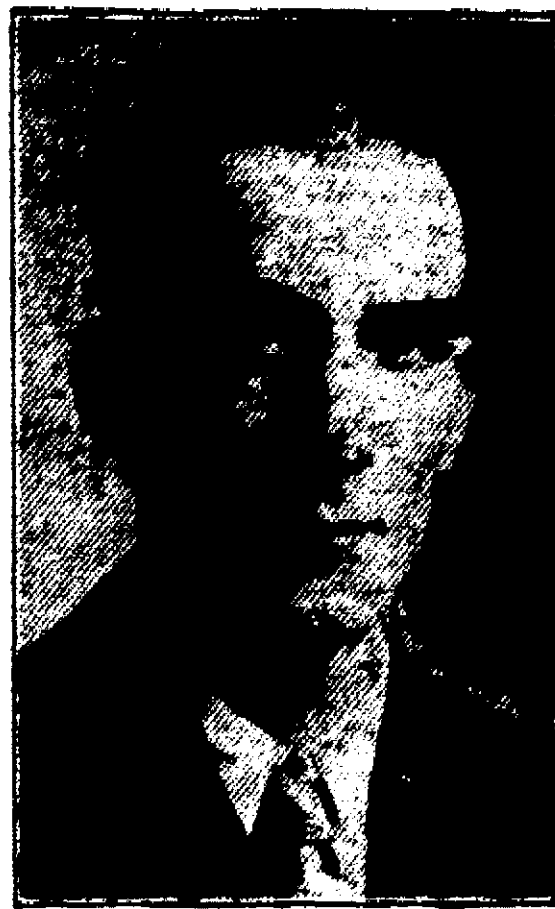

As early as 1919 the Marion office passed the million dollar mark in annual production and has consistently maintained its position as one of the leading agencies of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co. Through its representation of fifteen active writers the company serves approximately 7,500 clients in this district.

Active in other localities in the district are Eaton Baird of Mt. Gilead, U. F. Bruning of Delaware, C. E. Baseler of R. F. D. Marion, W. C. Jacobs of Richmond, Fred A. Shaffer of New Washington, Leonard Sour of Andover, M. E. Schieber of Bucyrus, J. C. Mortland of Gallon and E. B. Allworth of Marengo.

High Rating
With a full line of life insurance and investment contracts the Ohio State Life Insurance Co. has had a consistent and conservative growth. The unusually sound status of the company is recognized in financial circles through the following quotation from the latest edition of Best's Life Insurance Reports: "The company has had a rapid, persistent yet very conservative growth. Policyholders' surplus is more than sufficient for all contingencies, and the reserve basis is very strong. Expenses are moderate and reducing. The mortality rate is very favorable. Its investments are of excellent quality, consisting mainly of mortgage loans, and yield a most excellent return. The company pays just claims promptly. Our general policyholders' rating of this company is excellent."

INSURANCE STOPS ESTATE SHRINKAGE

Analysis Shows Debts, Administration Costs Take Heavy Toll.

Life insurance is the most effective method to protect an estate against shrinkage due to debts, costs of administration and taxes. An analysis of more than 7,000 individual estates, ranging in amount from $2,000 to $10,000,000 discloses the average shrinkage is 20 per cent.

Estates valued at $2,000 to $10,000 showed an average shrinkage of 38.7 per cent; $10,000 to $30,000 of 33.5 per cent; $30,000 to $50,000 of 19 per cent, and $50,000 to $100,000 of 17 per cent.

In the Saturday Evening Post, Albert W. Atwood said of the value of life insurance:

"Life insurance is a protection in most cases against the forced sale and sacrifice of estates, the new district offices in the Marion County bank building, and assures you prompt and efficient service in life insurance matters.

Incurrence of debts, the loss of control, the interference in a going business, and other similar economic disturbances caused by heavy death duties. Where life insurance is taken out, the very act which creates and matures the debt, death itself discharges it."

Another investigation, made to determine the nature of the assets constituting estates, disclosed the fact that only ten persons out of a hundred leave an estate that is worth probating, and that eight out of ten of these estates are composed exclusively of the proceeds of life insurance policies.

Sees Life Insurance
Stabilizing Influence

According to John M. Sarver, president of the Ohio State Life Insurance Co., life insurance, with its many advantages, has been a stabilizing influence in many business enterprises and also in the personal affairs of many men and women during the present lull in business activity.

With six per cent of the world's population, the United States has 70 per cent of its life insurance, and it is estimated that $108,600,000,000 of life insurance is in force. Of this sum approximately $18,500,000 is new business written in 1929, re-

The Spectator, insurance magazine published by the Spectator Co., New York City, lists 364 holders of life insurance in excess of $1,000,000 and 16,000 policyholders in the United States and Canada carrying $50,000 or more.

Politicians, teachers, lawyers, and physicians are in the minority among the "big money" policy holders, with stage and screen stars, movie directors, and producers, and business men holding the majority of the large policies.

Pierre S. du Pont, Wilmington, Del., is the holder of the largest amount of insurance in the United States, with policies totaling $7,000,000. Four other members of the same family are insured for several million each, and the eight members of the Du Pont family possess insurance totaling $15,350,000.

John Barrymore, noted stage and screen star, is insured for $2,000,000. Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks each have policies totaling $1,000,000. Other stage and screen luminaries with policies in excess of $500,000 are Gloria Swanson, Vilma Banky, Al Jolson, Norma and Constance Talmadge, Ronald Colman, Dolores Del Rio, Charles Chaplin, Erich von Stroheim, Cecil deMille, and many others.

In Ohio, Frederick B. Patterson of Dayton, leads with $5,480,500 of insurance and has the fifth largest amount in the United States. Charles F. Kettering, noted engineer of Dayton, is close behind him with $4,027,270.

VIEWS OF BLAKES GREENHOUSES

TWELVE LARGE GREENHOUSES NEEDED TO SUPPLY FLOWERS FOR LOCAL TRADE

At their greenhouses, Blakes are prepared to meet the demand for flowers for Mothers' day. Since the inauguration of Mothers' day, flowers have played an important part in this day. No language carries the message of tender affections better than the language of flowers.

For Mothers' day Blakes have a complete assortment of flowers and plants in all kinds and colors. Although price is a small item to consider in selecting flowers for Mothers' day, Blakes are offering flowers at a very reasonable cost compared to other years.

12 Greenhouses

This is only one of 12 immense houses of glass in which the capable employees at Blakes carry on the work of growing healthy and beautiful flowers for any occasion.

Orders for Mothers' day flowers may be placed at Blakes' store and display room located at 196 West Center street, or by phoning 5169 and having your order delivered to the specified address, at any time you wish.

The store room will remain open until 7:30 p. m. on Thursday, Friday and Saturday preceding Mothers' day. This extra service will greatly aid those who wish to personally select their flowers and are unable to do so during the day.

There is always an efficient clerk in charge to help and advise you on your selection. You will find it a great pleasure to purchase your flowers for Mothers' day at Blakes' Garden Season Here.

The danger of spring frosts is past and Marionites are busy planning and planting their flower gardens.

These gardens are really their outdoor living rooms.

But some outdoor living rooms are less attractive than others. If your outdoor living room is to possess the inspiration that your home really should hold for you, the trees, the shrubs, the flower gardens and especially the lawn must be healthy, strong, vigorous and beautiful.

Mr. Blake explains some of the methods of obtaining beautiful gardens. He states that it must be remembered that plants depend on the same things for life that humans do. They breathe, need water and food. Their environment too must suit their kind and purpose.

The main breathing organs of the plant are its leaves and they are very sensitive to foreign gases. Common illuminating gas will harm a house-plant when it is present in quantities so small that humans can't detect it.

The roots are the plants organs of assimilation and it is important that they should be well fed. The ground in which they are planted should be properly fertilized and cultivated. Consult Blakes for the best kinds of fertilizers to be used.

In planning your flower garden Mr. Blake says the best results are obtained by planting in rows for they are much easier to water and weed than beds.

Weeds Are Enemies

It is important that all weeds are kept out of the flower garden. They not only detract from the beauty of the garden but rob the plants of their much needed food and air.

Blakes seeds and plant department in rear of their store reports a great sale on such flowers as sweet alyssum, asters, cockscomb, cosmos, larkspur, California poppies, petunias, verbenas and zinnias, nasturtiums, sweet peas and dozens of others.

Garden seeds too have been in great demand this year. The rear of Blake's show room is devoted to garden and flower seeds. These seeds are of tested stock and are guaranteed by Blakes to grow into fine healthy plants.

Now is the time to plant your tomato and cabbage plants. It will pay you to investigate the vigorous plants that Blakes are selling this year.

Half of your gardening troubles are over if you buy good seeds and plants. Blakes aim to sell only the best in seeds and always fine healthy and vigorous plants may be purchased from them.

home decorations, only the ultra-modernists would consider a colored lavatory in their bathrooms.

Now, however, a survey of the newer homes reveals that the conventional white is the exception rather than the rule in designing this most important room. A varied selection of design and shades of every conceivable color are offered the prospective builder.

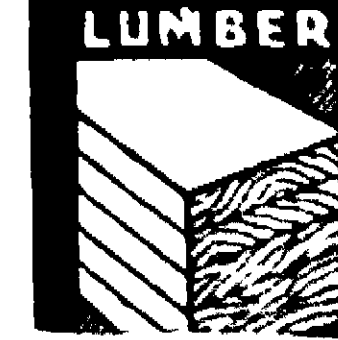

It has been closely observed by contractors and fixture manufacturers who have been present at model home exhibitions that the comments of visitors offer a splendid opportunity to gauge the desires of the public in regard to colors and fixtures.

Many of these visitors evince an interest, showing conclusively that they consider the bath carefully in selecting a home. When the choice lies between two homes, one with a mediocre bath and the other with the latest type of fixtures and color scheme, it is obvious which one the buyer will select.

TIMELY HOME HINT
